SERIES II. THE FEDERAL COURTS
NO. 20. MASSACHUSETTS

Boston, Massachusetts

1938

PREFACE

The Inventory of Federal Archives in the States is one of the products of the work of the Survey of Federal Archives, which operated as a nation-wide project of the Works Progress Administration from January 1, 1936 to June 30, 1937, and has been continued in Massachusetts since that date as a state project of that Administration.

The plan for the organization of the Inventory is as follows: Series I consists of reports on the administration of the Survey, acknowledgments, and general discussions of the location, condition, and content of federal archives in the states. Succeeding series contain the detailed information secured by workers of the Survey, in inventory form, a separate series number being assigned to each of the executive departments (accept the Department of State) and other major units of the Federal Government. Within each series No. 1 is a general introduction to the field organization and records of the governmental agency concerned; the succeeding numbers contain the inventory proper, separate numbers being assigned to each state in alphabetical order. Thus, in each series, the inventory for Alabama is No. 2, that for Arizona No. 3, that for Arkansas No. 4, etc.

For each local office information regarding each series, or unit of related records, is presented in the following order: title, inclusive dates ("to date" indicating an open file at the time the information was secured), general description of informational content, description of the system of filing or indexing (if any), a statement of frequency and purpose of use, form of the record itself (bound volumes, sheets in folders, etc.), linear footage, description of the containers, physical condition of the records (not stated if satisfactory), location by room number or other identifying information, and finally, the number of the Form 58SA on which this information was originally recorded by a Survey worker and from which it was abstracted for the inventory. This form is on file in The National Archives. When it contains substantial information on addenda sheets which has not been included in the mimeographed abstract, indication of this is given by use of the reference "See addenda."

In Massachusetts the work of the Survey has been under the direction of Mr. J. W. McElroy. This inventory of the records of the Federal Courts in Massachusetts was prepared in the Boston office of the Survey, and was edited before final typing by Dr. G. Philip Bauer of the Division of Independent Agencies Archives of the National Archives.

INTRODUCTION

The State of Massachusetts, excluding the district of Maine, was constituted a judicial district in the Federal system by the act of September 24, 1789. Since that time it has remained a single district without divisions, and its principal seat has always been at Boston. For a time (1789-1813) regular sessions of the district court, though not of the circuit court, were also held at Salem. Terms of both courts were instituted at Springfield by an act of March 2, 1909, which directed, moreover, that a deputy clerk should be appointed to reside and keep an office there; but Boston continued to be the depository of the courts' records; and an act of May 1, 1922 expressly stipulated that all "writs, precepts, and processses" should be returnable to Boston and that all court papers should be kept in the clerk's office there unless special orders to the contrary were issued by the court. The act of 1922 also provided that regular sessions of the district court should be held at New Bedford and in 1926 Worcester was added to the list of places where the court should sit.

Since 1801 the district of Massachusetts has belonged to the first circuit. In 1891, when the circuit courts of appeals were created, the first circuit embraced the districts of Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Maine. Boston was designated as the seat of the court for the circuit. An act of January 28, 1915 added Porto Rico to the first circuit and a further act of January 8, 1925 provided that the court of appeals for the circuit should, when in its judgment the public interest required, hold a special sitting for the island at San Juan; but presumably the records of the court were still to be kept at Boston only.

Federal Bldg., Post Office Square

This court resided in the Old Federal Building from 1891 until 1929 when the building was torn down. While a new building was under construction it occupied quarters in Young's Hotel, Court Square, where it remained until 1933. In that year the court moved to its present offices on the 15th and 16th floors of the new Federal Building.

The annual term of the court of appeals opens in Boston on the first Tuesday in October. Cases which have been previously reviewed in sessions held the first Tuesday in January and the second Tuesday in April are then heard. The personnel of the court comprises four judges, one clerk, one deputy, and one secretary. Approximately 125 cases are heard annually by this court. Complete data of each case, including the opinions of the justices, are kept in a folder numerically filed.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

BOSTON

CLERK

Federal Bldg., Post Office Square

The United States Court at Boston has had various locations since 1789. In the early period (1789-1813) quarters were maintained in the Exchange Coffee House at Congress, State, and Devonshire Streets. In 1813 the court moved to the new Court House, Court Square, where it remained until 1855. The old and well known Parkman-Shore House in Bowdoin Square, thereafter housed it until 1921 when it was established at Young's Hotel, Court Square. Since 1933 its offices have occupied the south wing of the fifteenth floor of the new Federal Building. Referees in bankruptcy have offices on the eleventh floor; and judges of the district court have rooms on the sixteenth floor.

The district court convenes the third Tuesday in March, the fourth Tuesday in June, the fourth Tuesday in September, and the first Tuesday in December. Its personnel comprises three district judges, one clerk, three probation and parole officers, and fifteen clerical assistants and stenographers.

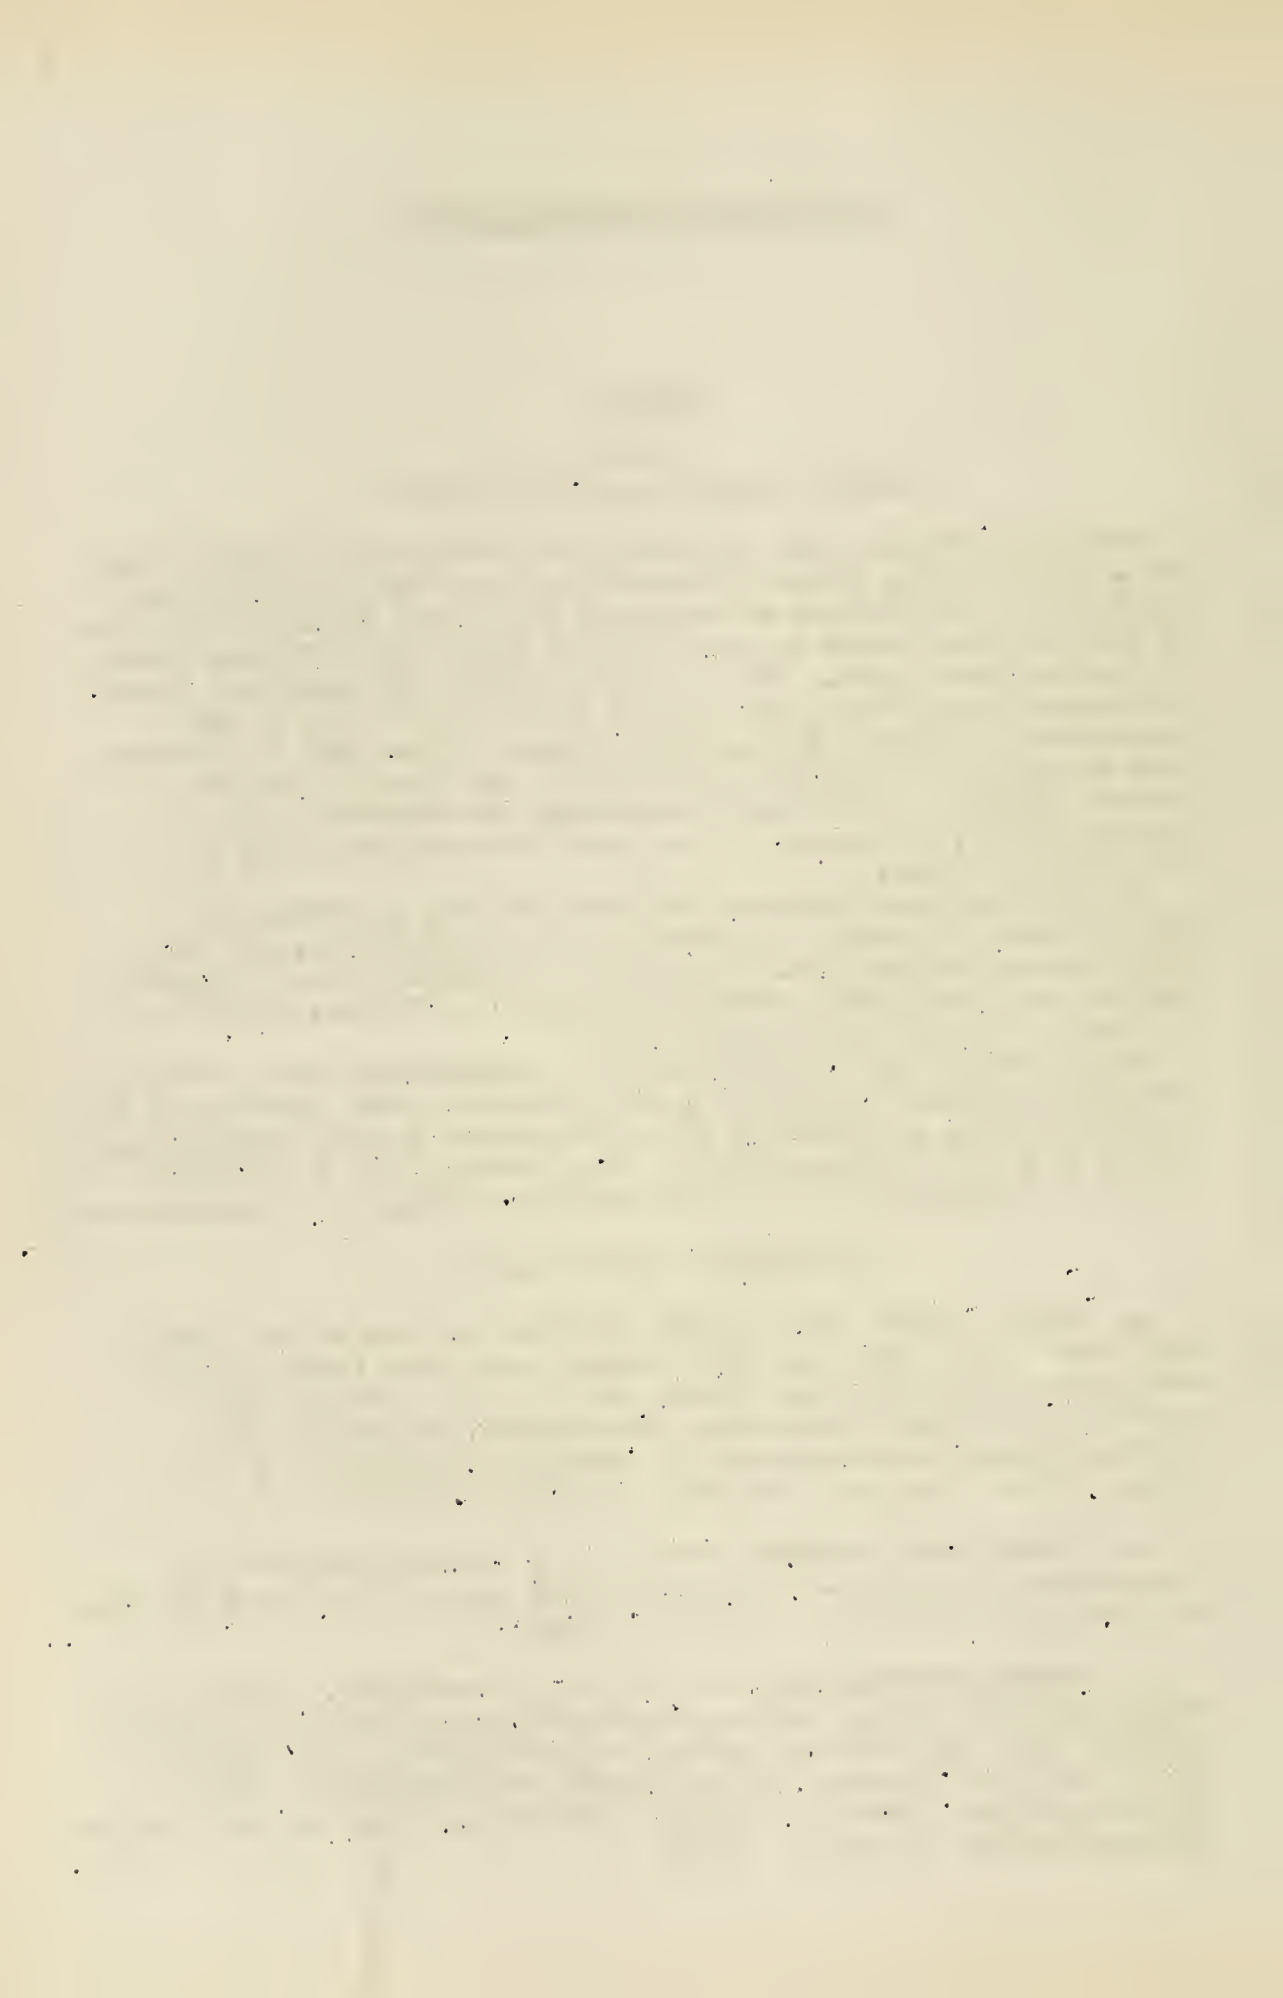

The records of the court are in fair condition in spite of their frequent removals. Of special interest are the prize court cases of the War of 1812, all of which are now carefully folded, wrapped, and stored in a steel filing cabinet. These records have been indexed and are readily available for students, historians, and genealogists.

Transcripts of various petitions of individuals whose goods or ships have been confiscated as prizes of war and disposed of by court for violation of the embargo against Great Britain. Several British ships, prizes of war, were petitioned for by their American agents. The usual plea was ignorance on the part of the ship's master of prevailing conditions, as the ship was forty or more days distant from America and communications were extremely slow; also, in cases where dates of sailing made ignorance impossible, storms and almost being wrecked were given as excuses for prolongation of voyage and arrival at a United States port after the embargo had gone into effect.
